THE WORD

Some biblical scholars (including St. Augustine) say neither Mary, Peter, nor the beloved disciple in John's Gospel came to Easter faith on that Easter morning; it only came later after the risen Jesus had appeared to them. All three simply believed the body was gone. Other scholars, however, say that the beloved disciple did come to faith, reading the signs about Him, notably the presence and placement of the burial cloths.

There is no space to get into this worthy discussion here. Since John's Gospel is a Gospel of "signs," I like to think that the Resurrection was the final sign, and the beloved disciple who was so close to Jesus that He could lean His head on His shoulder at the Last Supper "got it," that He was able to grasp the joyous event without fully understanding it. Love often "sees" what understanding can only later explain.

Whatever was the case on Easter morning, not long after the matter was clear: Jesus was raised by the Father. Belief in the resurrection then led to the courageous preaching of Peter on Pentecost, then in the house of the Roman centurion Cornelius heard today. That same belief was at the heart of all of Paul's letters and those written in his name. This belief is behind the call today to "seek what is above" where Christ is with the Father. And it is this belief that we are invited to witness to on Easter by renewing our baptismal promises.
